

A love letter to the terrible people in this community.

Hello, this is CometDummy, founder of the group Build Island Times, and the ill-fated Royal Monarchy of Oremo. I would like to announce that I will be going on hiatus from the Build Island community. Why do you ask? Long story short, it's because you people do not know how to behave like regular human beings.

Why am I going on hiatus?

— As I have already stated, I plan to go on hiatus because you people are actually terrible. Everytime I interact with the community, there's always something terrible going on. If not that, It's the people acting terribly. I always have to deal with all the nonsense you people do or say. Everytime I get pinged on the BI server, it's always some stupidity you people keep spewing. You people just love to obsess over something someone did, to the point you start stalking them despite the fact they're long gone from the community. Secondly, it's because of the LARP groups, and the people in charge of them. You people are egotistical monkeys. Even those who claim they are the sanest ones behave terribly. When you do anything they see as wrong, they will act all hurt. Even a simple joke is treated like a death threat in their eyes. Their influence spreads far beyond their groups. They have the ability to take anyone down, when they want it. These people can just freely ban anyone outside of their group's influence once they somehow gain access to a moderator slot. The smallest controversy of them can easily be dismissed. I have had leaders tell me they can just get away with anything. People in these groups even go as far as to roleplay children getting shown NSFW content, or claim someone that isn't even affiliated with them is their so-called "ally." All this is done in the name of their faction that is tied to a dying building game.

What will happen to my existing groups?

— The Royal Monarchy of Oremo is already in the process of being shut down as a group. I have done this due to the reasons I have stated before in the part of the document before this. Long story short, these people are terrible, and I do not wish to end up like them. As for Build Island Times, I plan to make the group inactive until further notice, or until the community becomes actually sane again, which I doubt. Until then, I will not post any new articles, or anything of the like.

Do not mention anything about me while I am gone.

I hope I never see any of you monkeys when I come back.

- CometDummy ♡